Many women, especially those of us who are single parents, believe that a healthy, strapping, God-loving, God-fearing man will simply put a bow on our gift boxes called life. However, I realized in my prayer for a loving, worthy spouse that a husband would simply be God's response to my prayer for His expressed love for me. In other words, the answer to my prayer-my husband-was just the beginning of God showing me what He could do in my life, not an ending. When society made assumptions about my situation, my lifestyle and my morality, I eventually learned to take the judgment, assumptions and whispers to the Father in prayer. When others made assumptions about my happiness and success based upon what they saw on the outside, I learned to take care of myself on the inside. Read the pages of this book if you've ever been told you could not do a thing. Read this book if you've ever thought that your life choices were beyond God's reach-that surely He would not bless you with anything because you had "messed up" so royally. Read this book if you, like me, have the audacity to ask God to bless you, despite yourself. If you believe the Word of God that says He will forgive your sins if you ask Him, and that His love surpasses all that we do or could even think about doing, this book is for you. If you need a little pep talk in overcoming obstacles and overlooking others, this book is for you. Let my story motivate you, and point you in the right direction. I am a living witness that if He will give me the desires of my heart, He will certainly do it for you. Let's go.
