JUST ONE NIGHT. Paden Kerr isn't used to anyone questioning his orders; Melina doesn't adhere to the concept. Surprised by his interest in her, Paden isn't sure if she hates all men or just him. He likes his life, is responsible to no one and plans on keeping it that way. Women are disposable; their advanced warnings not to expect long term commitment, rather accept his rules and generosity while they have his attention. Melina isn't prepared for the new sensual emotions settling within her. She's let Paden touch her in ways no other man has during a time of distress, drawing her into the world of his creative, erotic lust. She's fallen in love with him and is under no delusions, deciding to take his attentions one night at a time, never forgetting his warning. Finally accepting his feelings, Paden will find her again, and when he does, he'll make her his permanently.  "This novel is a tribute to the heroes, male and female, who fought in WWII. I've always been drawn to that era, when new beginnings abounded and women were finally allowed to find their place in society. With the world changing around them, my characters are free to act on decisions they never would have dreamed in the past." ~ Lillith ~
